WEDNESDAY EVENING, AUGUST 2, 1882.

A SHARP RETORT. - A Coalitionist approached a Democratic friend of ours (who had fought Massey bitterly during the last two campaigns) on the Court Green at Cumberland C. H. on Monday last, and said to him that he hoped he would speak against Massey as he had done in the past. answer he received was any thing but pleasing to him, when the Democrat said: "Oh no, you endorsed everything Massey did up to the meeting of the last Legislature— I endorse everything he has done since." The answer was brief, but it was to the point .- Farmville Journal.

A Moscow letter to the London Telegraph declares that General Skobeleff did not die of heart disease or anything akin to it, but that he and a lot of other noble Russians went on a grand tear, and had a row in a house of more than dubious fame, in the course of which the general received injuries which resulted fatally, though he was hastily removed to a respectable hotel in order that he might die creditably.
